

NOTED WARRIOR DIES IN SLEEP

Field Marshal Lord Roberts,
Britain's Great Soldier, Passes Suddenly.

London, Eng., Nov. 15.—The entire British empire is mourning the death Saturday night of field marshal Lord Roberts, one of the most noted soldiers Great Britain ever had. He died in his sleep at the headquarters of the British expeditionary headquarters in France. Lord Roberts had gone to France to review the British troops, and particularly the Hindu regiments. He was born in India and had a strong affection for the people of that country.

FIELD MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

more than one instance, his qualities of generalship and personal daring enabled him to win battles against overwhelming odds.

Organized Boy Scouts.

After his retirement from active service some years ago, Lord Roberts crowned his life's activities by starting the Boy Scouts movement in England. It has now spread to the United States, Canada, France, Belgium, and many other countries.

The field marshal had motored to the British bases and camps Friday, had conferred with the leading officers. It was not until about dinner time Friday evening that he complained of a slight chill. As he was subject to trifling chest troubles, he followed his usual course and went to bed early. As his temperature increased, medical men were called in and pronounced his condition critical. They relieved the general of his pain and he fell asleep. His death occurred during sleep.

The passing of the great warrior has created profound grief throughout the country. At all churches and in the soldiers' training camps touching references were made to his death.

Army Commander Expresses Sympathy. In a telegram to Lady Roberts, field marshal Sir John French, in the name

CZARINA NURSES WOUNDED SLAVS

Grand Duchesses Also Work
Hard in Hospital, Like Any Other Nurses.

Petrograd, Russia, Nov. 15.—Almost in the shadow of the imperial palace in Tsarskoye Selo, the winter home of emperor Nicholas, there is a low building half hidden behind villas which is perhaps the most remarkable hospital improvised during the present war. Soldiers come out not only healed, but with a strange exaltation.

The hospital is supported by funds at the disposal of the minister of the imperial court.

At the special request of the empress, a part of the head nurse has been set aside as the court hospital, where the empress and her two eldest daughters, the grand duchess Olga and Tatiana, work among the other Red Cross nurses from 10 o'clock every morning until late in the afternoon.

Just Like Other Nurses.

There is nothing either in the nature of their work or in the appearance of their gray gingham uniforms and white aprons like hoods to distinguish them from the others. Their rank is not made the excuse for any escape or receipt from the hardships or unpleasantness of the daily routine.

At all the most difficult operations, her majesty acts as head nurse, handling the operating surgeon his instruments while the two grand duchesses pass the necessary cloths and bandages.

Peasants Much Impressed.

The effect of this imperial presence on the simple peasant mind cannot be fully appreciated without understanding the religious awe which the peasant feels toward the imperial family.

This semi-religious exaltation of the wounded soldiers has, according to the surgeons in the hospital, noticeably hastened their return to health.

Emperor Visits Wounded.

Once a week the emperor visits the hospital with his young son and his two youngest daughters, Marie and Anastasia. During these visits it is his custom to make the entire rounds of the 121 beds for privates and 29 for officers and to question the men as to how they received their wounds.

All the hospitals in Tsarskoye Selo and Pavlovsk are under the patronage of the empress and the wounded are conveyed from the hospital trains in the automobiles of the imperial garage.

of the army serving in France, expressed deep sympathy, saying:

"Your grief is shared by us who mourn the loss of a much loved chief. As he was called, it seems fitter to the ending of the life of a great soldier that he should have passed away in the midst of the troops he loved so well."

The question of a public funeral for Britain's great soldier with services at St. Paul's is under consideration, but it is understood in deference to the wishes of Lady Roberts for a private service this will not be pressed.

RUSSIANS IMPOSE FINES

ON CONQUERED PRUSSIANS

London, Eng., Nov. 15.—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Daily Mail says it is learned from Berlin that the Russians are imposing fines on the conquered east Prussian towns, corresponding to the German fines imposed on Belgian towns.

The military authorities in east Prussia, under the dispatch, have given orders that as the Russians advance the inhabitants must abandon their homes and remove all their flocks and herds, as well as their valuables and burn their houses, so as to prevent the Russians subsisting on the country. Many villages are reported to have been evacuated already.

ON THE FAMOUS CHICKERING PIANOS

TO HIGH-CLASS PIANO BUYERS—This is positively the last week of our great sale of the wonderful Chickering pianos. Never again in the history of the piano business will another such opportunity present itself to you. There is no fake to this proposition. Everybody knows the Chickering pianos and the regular prices they are sold at—we cannot mark the prices up and then mark them down—the intelligent public is too familiar with the Chickering and their prices—we are bound to place a number of these instruments in El Paso homes and do it quickly. We were fortunate in effecting an arrangement with the Chickering factory in allowing us to give Boston factory prices for two weeks only. After that date we will be required to sell at western prices.

If you are a wise buyer and want the finest piano built in the world, come now, this very moment; we will take your old piano in exchange.
